Parts of a china rose flower

The prominent parts which appear are the petals and the leaf like structures below it are called as sepals. The two major parts of the flower are the stamen and the pistil.

The stamen is made up of a stalk called filament and anther. The pistil is further divided into three parts namely the style, stigma and ovary. The bottom swollen part of the pistil is the ovary which has small bead like structures called ovules.
