

Pinhole Camera

Pinhole camera is an optical device that forms an image without using a mirror or lens. The light rays entering through the holes of the roof act as a pinhole camera as they produce images of the sun when they fall on the ground. The image formed by a pinhole camera is always real, inverted and diminished.

