Passwords

Passwords protect network data from unauthorized access. Passwords are the first line of defense in securing information and resources attached to a network. As a general rule, users are assigned a password along with their user name. User names and passwords should always be kept secret to ensure network security.

- Group Passwords
- Resource Passwords