

Security

Most networks have built-in security programs that can monitor and report any abnormal activity. Many security programs help prevent unauthorized users from accessing information on the network.

