

Natural Disasters

Natural disasters can be devastating to a business. Disasters such as earthquakes, floods and tornadoes can destroy all the information on a network in a matter of moments. Most large organizations have disaster recovery programs in place that outline how these types of disasters are handled. Criminal acts, such as vandalism and theft, can compromise the security of network data.

