Crackers

Crackers are people who enjoy the challenge of illegally breaking into computer systems and breaching network security. Crackers usually do not cause any damage to the networks they successfully break into, but they may be able to view private or confidential information stored on the network.