

Theft

Almost every company is vulnerable to computer theft. Most computer systems are easily transported and can be very profitable for thieves. Most computer thieves are very knowledgeable about computers and often strip the computers and sell the parts. A virus is a program that can cause a variety of problems, including the destruction of information on a computer system.

