

Detection

There are many anti-virus software programs available that will scan information stored on a computer to try and detect if there are any viruses on the computer. Many anti-virus programs can also remove viruses once they are detected. Some viruses cannot be removed without deleting the infected information.

