Backups

When a virus is discovered on a computer that is regularly backed up, it is important to determine when the computer became infected with the virus. If a backup was performed while the virus existed on the computer, the computer may be reinfected if the backup copy is restored.