

Servers

Intranets use high-performance computers, called servers, to control the distribution of information on an intranet. On most intranets, each intranet feature is stored on its own server. Many intranet servers are similar to the servers used on the internet.

