Maintenance

Servers should be shut down regularly for maintenance. Maintenance often involves running a program that checks to make sure the server Is functioning properly. Setting up and following a maintenance schedule can help ensure the reliability of a server.