

Gateways

A gateway is used to connect two different network types. For example, you can use a gateway to link a Mac network and a PC network. When a gateway receives information, the gateway translates the information into a form the destination network can understand.

- Hardware or Software
- Default Gateways