

Applications of Computer

Computers have proliferated into various areas of our lives. For a user, computer is a tool that provides the desired information, whenever needed. You may use computer to get information about the reservation of tickets (railways, airplanes and cinema halls), books in a library, medical history of a person, a place in a map, or the dictionary meaning of a word, any presentation, and also in education. The information may be presented to you in the form of text, images, video clips, etc.

Taking notes in a class

Reading cached e-mail during a flight

Updating patient records between appointments

Browsing the web while reclining on a sofa

Giving a business presentation

Watching a movie in a hotel room