

Reliability

Most networks are designed to be durable and can operate uninterrupted for long periods of time. Some networks can alert the network administrator if problems or errors occur.

