

Future Needs

Before installing a server, it is important to determine how the server will be used in the future. Many servers have limits on the amount of memory and the processor types that can be installed. Choosing a server that can be modified to meet the changing needs of the network helps to ensure the server will not have to be replaced with a newer model when inexpensive upgrades could be performed.

