Support

Networks connected to the internet require more support than other networks. For example, if a company has a Web site, someone will need to creates and maintain the web pages stored on the Web sit Personnel will also be required to support any new Internet-related hardware and software installed on the network.