Employee Productivity

A connection to the Internet may reduce employee productivity i1 employees use the Internet for non-work related tasks, such as personal Web browsing. To save a company from this type of financial loss, the network administrator should set and enforce rigid guidelines dictating how employees may use the Internet.