

Setting Up Routers

Information such as the name of the router and what types of networks are attached to the router must be entered into the router before it will work. Many routers allow a computer to be attached to them so information can be entered.

