Wide Area Networks

Many companies use telephone lines to establish a permanent link between two modems in a Wide Area Network (WAN). Wide area networks often use modems to connect areas o1 the network that do not transfer large amounts of information.