Dear Rohit

We went to Sultanpur Lake to welcomed the migratory birds. Every year around 8,000 migratory birds come to this place to Central Asian Countries like Siberia and travel towards Afghanistan and China, before touched down in India.

The birds start arriving in Sultanpur Bird Sanctuary at early November and they stay there till late March, depending in the climatic conditions.

The migratory birds presented a beautiful sight. The bar-headed goose, spot-billed duck, common pochard and the moorhen is the few names that I remember.

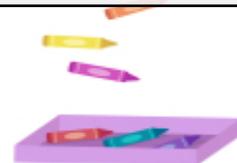

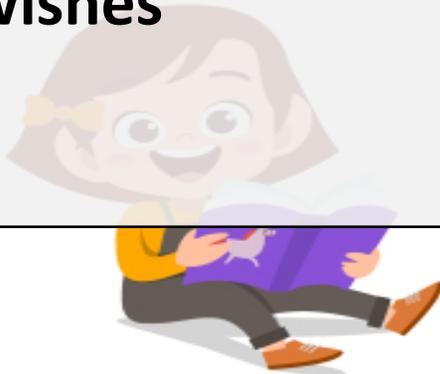

The pleasant weather of India, the lake and other water bodies, makes a suitable habitat for the birds. They travel thousands to miles for several weeks to reach here. We made colourful placards too welcome our winged guests.

It was a great day out.

With best wishes
