

Swimming birds

Also known as water bird or aquatic bird is a bird that lives in or around water. Their legs are adapted to diving or webbing between the toes. Swimming birds have webbed feet in which they skin between the three front toes which helps them to push back water while swimming. For example- duck and swan.

