

Introduction Of Our Environment

Environment is made up of living and non living things. Every living thing has its own environment. What we have we get from the environment. Everything we have is given by the environment food, water, air, clothing and other material.

Every living thing has its own environment. For example, the environment of a plant includes the water, air, sun, weather, soil and the creatures living in it. Human fulfill his needs with the help of environment. In this environment we add harmful substances and pollutants in the environment and contaminate air, land, and water. We destroy the forest for our need.
