

Insectivorous Plants

Sometimes a plant is unable to get sufficient nutrients from the soil so they fulfill their needs by trapping insects. They have beautiful flowers with attractive colors so that insects easily gets trapped in them. Such plants grow in soil that is poor in nitrogen. They fulfill the shortage of nitrogen by trapping insects E.g. Pitcher plant, Venus flytrap and sundew.

