

Introduction of Environment

A. Environment

Environment means our surroundings. It includes plants, animals etc everything around us. It consists of living as well as non living things. Air, water, mountains and rivers all these refer to the environment.

B. Environment Change

With the passage of time our environment changed alot. We hear from our grandparents that the environment in which they lived earlier was so beautiful. It was so greeny, lesser factories were there and more trees were there. A change in environment by human beings for their own needs, leads to unfavorable environmental conditions.

For the development of the country we expand our urban and rural areas by cutting plants and constructing more and more factories. We cleared the forest and setup cities, factories there.

Introduction of Environment

Increasing number of vehicles on roads is not only reducing wildlife and natural environment but also affecting the atmosphere by polluting the air. Thus, human activities are effecting the environment badly. These changes lead to unfavorable environment. Now we have problems like greenhouse effect, global warming, pollution etc.
