

Introduction of Animals

Animals carry a lot of importance in our lives. They offer humans, food and many other things. For instance, we consume meat, eggs, and dairy products. Further, we use animals as a pet too. They are of great help to handicaps. Thus, through the animal essay, we will take a look at these creatures and their importance.

There are different kinds of animals. They are different in size, shape and colour. They are found everywhere. We have given different names to the different animals. We also divide them into groups. Dividing animals into groups is called classification of animals.
