Describe what you saw, heard, felt, smelled, and tasted.

This helps the audience immerse themselves in your story.

Emotional Impact:

Share your emotions during the experience.

How did you feel before, during, and after the event? Conveying your emotions helps the audience connect with your story on a deeper level.

4. Highlight the Turning Point

Climax:

Identify the climax or the most critical moment of your experience.

This is the point where the main action or change occurs.

This is often where the lesson or the impact of the experience becomes clear.

5. Reflect on the Experience

Broader Implications:

Connect your personal experience to broader themes or issues.
